The cartoonist Marek Bennett developed cartoon books called zines on New Hampshire's Black soldiers who fought in the American Revolution. The Hanover Historical Society gave away his zines July 4th at our table on the Green. People can learn from them or color them in. Next year he will feature Hanover historical stories in his series.

The Hanover Historical Society also gave away tickets to the preview of Ken Burns's new film series, The American Revolution, which will air on PBS in the fall. Cyndy Bittinger, President of the Hanover Historical Society, was one of our volunteers.

Here are some pictures from July 4th:

Daniel Webster, portrayed by Bill Hammond, greeted people at our table. Board members, Tim Bent and Tim van Leer, greeted people as well.
